

Table of Contents

Introduction .....	V
List of abbreviations .....	XI

PART ONE. A HISTORY OF MEDICAL LAW

Between Jerusalem, Athens and Rome – Ethics, Law and the Medical Arts .....	3
1. Introductory Remarks .....	4
2. Antiquity .....	4
3. The Middle Ages .....	10
4. The Modern and Contemporary Ages .....	13

PART TWO. SOURCES OF MEDICAL LAW

Chapter 1. Sources of Medical Law .....	27
1.1. Introductory remarks .....	29
1.2. The constitutional concept of sources of law .....	29
1.3. A statute as a fundamental source of medical law – a concept of the statutory matter in the realm of health relations .....	33
1.4. Regulation as a source of medical law .....	34
1.5. An enactment of local law as a source of medical law .....	35
1.6. An international agreement as a source of medical law .....	36
1.7. Customary law as a source of medical law .....	37
1.8. Opinions of the doctrine as a source of medical law .....	38
1.9. European Union law as a source of medical law .....	38
1.10. Autonomous sources of medical law .....	40

PART THREE. SOURCES OF LEGAL RELATIONS

Chapter 2. Properties and Elements of a Private Medical Law Relation – General and Methodological Premises .....	51
2.1. The concept of medical law .....	53
2.2. The usefulness of an analysis of medical law relations .....	53
2.3. The essence and significance of a private medical law relation .....	54
2.4. Elements of obligative medical law relations .....	56
2.5. Legal occurrences framing the obligative medical law relations .....	62
2.6. Special comments on the provisions protecting or restricting the autonomy of parties to obligative medical law relations .....	68
2.7. New tendencies in private medical law. Conclusions for the future .....	70
Chapter 3. An Act-in-Law as a Fundamental Source of Medical Law Relations ...	75
3.1. Introduction .....	78
3.2. The health service agreement as an act indirectly leading to the emergence of a medical law relation .....	80

Table of Contents

3.3. Treatment contract as the basis for establishing a medical law relation . . . . .	83
3.4. Legal character of a treatment contract . . . . .	86
3.5. Application of the Civil Code to a treatment contract . . . . .	95
3.6. The freedom of parties to shape their treatment contracts . . . . .	106
3.7. The patient as a consumer . . . . .	114
3.8. Statutory regulation of treatment contract in Polish law? . . . . .	117
Chapter 4. Consent to a Medical Procedure . . . . .	119
4.1. Preliminary questions . . . . .	123
4.2. The law as it stands now . . . . .	127
4.3. Non-legislative regulations of consent (Medical Ethics Code) . . . . .	130
4.4. Constitutional considerations of consent to a medical procedure . . . . .	133
4.5. Legal capacity to give consent . . . . .	137
4.6. Legal character of consent . . . . .	147
4.7. Form of consent . . . . .	152
4.8. Scope of consent . . . . .	157
Chapter 5. Statements in Case of Incapacity to Consent to Medical Treatment . . . . .	159
5.1. Introduction . . . . .	161
5.2. Terminology . . . . .	163
5.3. Continuing power of attorney: one of the forms of statements in case of incapacity . . . . .	165
5.4. Statements in case of incapacity in the Convention on Biomedicine . . . . .	167
5.5. Statements in case of incapacity in recommendations of the Council of Europe . . . . .	168
5.6. Legal nature and effects of statements in case of incapacity . . . . .	169
PART FOUR. PARTIES TO A MEDICAL LAW RELATION
Chapter 6. Status of a Patient . . . . .	177
6.1. The notion of a patient . . . . .	188
6.2. The beginning of human life and the problem of the nasciturus . . . . .	195
6.3. The end of life . . . . .	209
6.4. The civil law status of the human body . . . . .	229
Chapter 7. Forms of Conducting Healthcare Activity . . . . .	243
7.1. Significance of the Healthcare Activity Act (HCAA) for the health protection system in Poland . . . . .	244
7.2. Healthcare activity as business activity . . . . .	245
7.3. Concept of healthcare activity and requirements to conduct it . . . . .	246
7.4. Healthcare service providers . . . . .	249
7.5. Public sector healthcare service providers . . . . .	249
7.6. Non-public healthcare providers . . . . .	252
7.7. Practising medical professions . . . . .	255
7.8. Forms of practising all medical professions . . . . .	258
7.9. Individual and group professional practices of medical doctors and nurses . . . . .	259
7.10. Voluntary service . . . . .	262
7.11. Role and significance of the NHF for healthcare activity . . . . .	262

PART FIVE. CONTENT OF THE MEDICAL LAW RELATION (RIGHTS AND DUTIES OF THE PARTIES)

Chapter 8. Patient's Rights .....	267
8.1. Patient's rights. General questions .....	270
8.2. Constitutional right to health protection .....	283
8.3. Right to respect for a patient's privacy and dignity .....	290
8.4. Consent as the emanation of a legally protected freedom. A critique of the concept of the "right to consent" .....	297
8.5. Right to access medical records .....	299
8.6. Procedural rights: to a second opinion or a consultation by a medical panel, and to objection to the opinion or decision of a medical doctor .....	303
8.7. Right to petition the Ombudsman for Patient Rights .....	306
8.8. Patient's right to deposit .....	307
8.9. Patient's right to healthcare services .....	311
8.10. Right to healthcare services in the European Union. The right to cross-border services .....	322
Chapter 9. Patient's Duties .....	337
9.1. General remarks .....	339
9.2. Patient's duties in remunerative healthcare service contracts .....	341
9.3. The scope of the patient's duty to cooperate with healthcare service provider ..	350
9.4. The patient's duty not to aggravate the damage .....	356
9.5. Patient's duties in an obligate relation and compulsory treatment .....	361
9.6. Other duties .....	366
Chapter 10. Rights of Healthcare Service Providers .....	367
10.1. Introduction .....	369
10.2. Rights of healthcare service providers .....	370
10.3. Rights of medical professionals .....	372
10.4. Rights of medical professionals .....	373
Chapter 11. Duties of Healthcare Service Providers .....	389
11.1. Duties of medical professionals .....	393
11.2. Duty of the medical doctor to inform .....	408

PART SIX. OBJECT OF THE MEDICAL LAW RELATION

Chapter 12. Notion of a Healthcare Service .....	439
12.1. Introduction .....	440
12.2. Contemporary legislation .....	441
12.3. Healthcare service as defined in Article 2(1)(10) of the HCAA .....	446
Chapter 13. Medical Experiments .....	457
13.1. Scope of legal regulations .....	461
13.2. The limits of the risk of a medical experiment .....	467
13.3. Consent of a medical experiment participant .....	476
13.4. Procedural conditions .....	482
13.5. De lege lata and de lege ferenda EU regulations concerning medical experiments .....	483
Chapter 14. Organ Transplantation .....	485
14.1. An outline of problems in organ transplantation .....	487

Table of Contents

14.2. Organ transplantation as a subject of special legislation . . . . .	490
14.3. Ex vivo transplantation . . . . .	491
14.4. Ex mortuo transplantation . . . . .	496
14.5. Situation of the recipient . . . . .	500
14.6. Protection of the donor's and recipient's right to personal disclosure . . . . .	502
14.7. Ban of commercialisation . . . . .	503
14.8. Human embryo as a stem cells donor . . . . .	504
14.9. Xenotransplantation . . . . .	507
Chapter 15. Genetics . . . . .	511
15.1. Genome and patient rights . . . . .	514
15.2. Post-natal genetic diagnostics . . . . .	517
15.3. Prenatal genetic diagnostics . . . . .	527
15.4. Modification of genetic characteristics . . . . .	533
Chapter 16. Aesthetic procedures . . . . .	541
16.1. Introductory remarks . . . . .	542
16.2. Particular traits of aesthetic treatments and the basic research problems . . . . .	545
16.3. Aesthetic treatments as therapeutic treatments . . . . .	548
16.4. The admissibility of non-therapeutic aesthetic procedures . . . . .	550
16.5. The principles of conducting aesthetic procedures . . . . .	552
Chapter 17. Medically Assisted Procreation . . . . .	555
17.1. Methods and purposes of medically assisted procreation . . . . .	558
17.2. The boundaries of freedom in the area of procreation . . . . .	560
17.3. The legal status of medically assisted procreation . . . . .	561
17.4. The boundaries of admissibility of medically assisted procreation methods . . . . .	563
17.5. Constraints applicable to anyone having access to assisted procreation . . . . .	568
17.6. The traits and legal effects of a patient's consent . . . . .	569
17.7. The principle of anonymity and the right to know the genetic origin . . . . .	571